The game fish include the erratic weakfish, the fighting bluefish, that red warrior of the deep, the channel bass, the chipper little herring, the torpedo-like bonito, the slashing striped bass and the delicate king-fish striped bass and the delicate kingfish.

In order to win membership in this club it is necessary to catch on a light rod one of these species using No. 32 cotton thread to bring the fish to the landing net.

Already the membership of the Cotton Thread Fishing Club of America is close to 150.

The largest fish caught so far weighed 5 pounds and 14 ounces and was taken with a light rod and No. 24 cotton thread in the hands of James L. Jordan. Mr. Jordan has also to his credit a weakfish of 3 pounds 12 ounces and a third weakfish of 5 pounds 9 ounces.

Here is the way Mr. Meister tells of the sport of angling with cotton thread:

of the sport of angling with cotton thread;

"Have a light five-foot rod with a flexible tip; the lighter the rod the better the chances of landing your fish and the greater the sport.

"Wind a spool of ordinary 24-thread spool cotton (5 cents a spool) on a small reel provided with a light drag and click.

"Attach a small hook with a short single strand leader to a loop at the end of the thread. Weight it with a tiny piece of sheet lead bent over the Whether the Braves get any closer to a pennant or not, this has been a big week for Dick Rudolph. The Bos-ton star, native of the Bronx, has been hook forward with a sidelong motion of your rod at right angles, you keep the bait in natural motion."

The eatching of game fish on cotton thread has spread to several other places along the Atlantic coast which New York men have visited. Not long ago Mr. Cleary and Mr. Meister, fishing in water from 40 to 50 feet deep, using trout rods and cotton thread tackle in the Atlantic Ocean, six miles east of Parmeous Island, off the coast of Virginia, took mullet and weakfish weighing from two to three pounds each.

Like the weakfish, the white mullet Take the weakhish, the white mullet or "croaker" (the local name) is a game, herce, resisting muscular fish, yet with trout rods weighing 2% ounces and rangely sinkers heavy enough to carry the shedder crab balt to the bottom, these men had no trouopinion that the Braves can not stand the strain with but three good pitchers, George Stallings says:

"I'd like for you to show me any other team that has more than three. The Giants have kept up there with nobody to depend upon but Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreas, and one of that trio has not done as well as either Rudolph, James or Tyler."

yet with trout rods weighing 2½ yet with the same yet weighting 2½ yet with the policy and rods weighting 2½ yet with the policy and rods weighting 2½ yet with the policy and rods weighting 2½ yet while rumors can not always be relied upon, it is pretty well known that McGraw is figuring on a deal which will bring to the Glants one of the best pitchers in the game. Some say the man is Rucker, but Charley Ebbets says no. Unless he succeeds in getting a man soon, the Glant manager will start Rube Schauer.
